You know, sometimes, life just hits you differently. You're sitting there, head in your hands, wondering why things aren't working out. Maybe you've tried your best to be a good person, prayed harder than a broken record, and still, you're asking yourself, "Jesus, I love you, but why don't you love me back?" Ah, my brother and sister, if you've ever had this moment of frustration, you're not alone. Let's talk.

The Struggle is Real (Naija Edition)
Nigeria no easy o! We're in a country where every day feels like an exam without any textbook to guide you. As you walk through the streets of Lagos or Kano, or even in the villages, the challenges are always there—no light, no water, no money. And then, to top it off, some of us still struggle with our faith.

We love Jesus, we've given our lives to Him, but e still be like say Him no dey hear us! Why?

Personal Story: My Own Wahala

Let me take you back to a few months ago. I was going through it. I had just lost a job (again), my business wasn't moving (even 7hubent Tech no get enough people for advertising that time), and everything just seemed dry. I would wake up, pray, shout "Jesus, Jesus, Jesus!" as if I was calling a conductor for bus, but still, silence.

One day, I sat on my bed, looked up, and asked, "Why are you doing me like this now? Jesus, I love you, but why you no love me back?" And no, there was no thunder from heaven or angels coming to comfort me.

But something did happen. I realized something—maybe it wasn't that Jesus didn't love me. Maybe I just didn't understand how He was showing it.

Why It Feels Like Jesus Isn't Loving Us Back

1. Misunderstanding Love

Sometimes, we think love means things going our way. We expect to pray and immediately get the job, the promotion, or the healing. But love, true love, isn't about just receiving what you want. It's about growth. Jesus loves us by helping us grow, even if it means letting us go through challenges.

Think of it like planting a seed. You don't just throw it in the ground and expect mangoes tomorrow morning. It takes time, watering, patience, and sometimes waiting under hot sun before you see fruit.

2. Delayed Blessings Aren't Denied Blessings

Ehen, here's another thing. Just because you haven't gotten what you prayed for doesn't mean you won't get it. If you plant your seed today and forget about it tomorrow, you won't know that rain came and it started growing.

So many of us give up just before the breakthrough. But remember, God's time no be our time. His love is in the waiting, even if it feels frustrating. Trust me, He loves you.

How I Found 7hubent Tech in My Journey

Now, while I was going through my "why-me-Jesus" phase, I stumbled upon 7hubent Tech. No be small thing. I was looking for a way to push my small business for free, because man pikin no get money for Facebook ads or Google campaigns. Na so I hear of this WhatsApp groups thing where you fit advertise for free.

I joined the platform, advertised, and started seeing small traffic to my business. It wasn't like some big miracle, but I could see that things were slowly working out. E be like say Jesus dey answer my prayers through small small signs.

FAQs: Jesus, I Love You, But...

Q: Why do I feel like God isn't answering me, no matter how hard I try?

Answer: It's not that God isn't listening; sometimes, His silence is a form of protection. He sees the bigger picture and knows the right time for everything. Patience is key.

Q: How can I trust God when I'm going through hard times?

Answer: Ah, my brother/sister, trust is hard o! But look at the testimonies around you. People have gone through worse and come out stronger. Remember, God doesn't give you what you can't handle.

Q: Is there really a plan, or am I just moving in circles?

Answer: There is a plan! Jeremiah 29:11 says, "For I know the plans I have for you, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." Even if you feel like you're moving in circles, God is working on something behind the scenes.

What I Learnt from This Experience

It took time, but I began to understand that love from Jesus doesn't always look like what we expect. Sometimes, it's in the subtle things—like connecting with people through platforms like 7hubent Tech, where your small business can get a little boost, or in that one friend that checks on you when you're feeling down.

Jesus' love might not come in the flashy ways we think, but it's always there. It's in the process, in the struggle, and in the waiting.

Final Thoughts: Let's Talk
