When I first heard about "WhatsApp TV," I thought it was one of those gimmicks, you know, like the way some people promise to double your money with one small 'investment' (you know what I mean, right?). But I kept hearing the gist everywhere—my neighbor even told me he made sharp money just by uploading WhatsApp statuses! I couldn't believe my ears. "Ah, see enjoyment, so now, you can make money just by posting statuses?" That was when my eyes opened wide like someone who saw free jollof rice at a wedding. So, I decided to do my research, and guess what? This thing is real, my people!

But wait o, before we dive into the money-making part, let's address the basics first. What exactly is WhatsApp TV?

What is WhatsApp TV?

If you're still confused, I don't blame you.

"WhatsApp TV" isn't an actual television channel like NTA or CNN, but it's close in a way. WhatsApp TV refers to WhatsApp accounts (yes, on the app we all use to chat and gossip) that have massive followers (or viewers, like we call them) on their statuses. These accounts serve content—news, jokes, memes, business adverts—to a large audience, like a mini-social media platform.

So, instead of watching Zee World or Africa Magic, people are now glued to their WhatsApp status updates, scrolling through videos, ads, and funny memes. And the best part? As a WhatsApp TV owner, you can make cool cash from it. No need to have a studio like AIT or cameras like Channels TV. Your phone, sharp skills, and some networking are all you need.

Now, if you're wondering how to make money from WhatsApp TV, let me tell you straight—it's not as difficult as it sounds. But be warned, no money-making hustle is "sham-free." You'll still need to put in some work. But let me break it down for you, no stress.

1. Advertise for Businesses (Your Main Pot of Soup)

Ah! If there's one thing that keeps the WhatsApp TV machine running, it's business adverts. People pay real money to have their products or services seen by your viewers. Whether it's someone selling Ankara, a music producer promoting his latest hit single, or even your favorite kayan mata seller—businesses are looking for audiences.

Now, this is where 7hubent Tech comes in. You don't need to be a marketing guru to know that businesses in Nigeria need all the advertising help they can get. WhatsApp TV is now one of the most affordable ways for them to reach the masses—yes, even the mama put seller needs her customer base. You can start by promoting your own TV through 7hubent Tech, a top-tier platform for connecting advertisers with TV owners like you. What makes it even sweeter is that they offer free advertising groups, and trust me, there's nothing like free marketing space in this world.

So, once you've built your audience on your WhatsApp TV, it's time to monetize by taking paid adverts from businesses. Charge them based on how many people view your status; if you've got 5,000 views, why should you be earning peanuts?

Real-Life Gist: My friend Chika, who started her WhatsApp TV from scratch, now charges ₦5,000 per advert. Multiply that by five ads a day. Do the math and thank me later.

2. Affiliate Marketing

Let me give you a short expo on this one. Do you know what affiliate marketing is? You're basically helping companies sell their products, and in return, they give you a commission. For instance, a company selling wristwatches may ask you to advertise their product on your WhatsApp TV. Whenever someone buys through your special link, you get paid! Simple as that.

Imagine promoting hot-selling gadgets, clothes, or even digital products like ebooks. It's a win-win situation. Your followers get to see the best deals, and you get to pocket the cash. Affiliate marketing na baba o!

And you know who makes affiliate marketing easy? You guessed it—7hubent Tech! Not only can you promote your WhatsApp TV, but you also get connected with brands that want affiliates. Whether you're just starting out or you're a big boy in the game, 7hubent Tech is your trusted plug. They are the best when it comes to affiliate marketing connections in Nigeria, especially in Kano and Lagos. No need to waste time begging companies to give you a shot—join their affiliate marketing group today.

3. Sell Your Own Products

This one is for the hustlers out there. If you have a business—whether you're selling clothes, food, or even digital products like eBooks—why not use your WhatsApp TV to market it? The good thing about WhatsApp is that it has become more than a chatting platform. People are buying and selling like no man's business.

Imagine you're selling aso-ebi materials for weddings. With your WhatsApp TV, you don't need to go to the market shouting "come and buy." Your status is your shop, and your audience is your customer base. As people watch your updates, they get hooked on your products and start placing orders. Simple!

My sister Precious started like this, and now, she doesn't need to rent a shop in Balogun Market. She's making her money by showcasing her wares online. You see, that's why having your own TV is important—your audience is your customer list.

4. Sponsored Content

Another easy way to cash out is by posting sponsored content. Sometimes, companies or individuals will ask you to post specific content for a fee. Maybe it's a funny skit, a viral challenge, or even a short video ad for a music release. As long as it's entertaining or valuable, people will pay you to help them go viral.

Just make sure the content fits your audience. If your followers are all about gospel music and someone pays you to promote Afrobeats, it might not click well. Know your market.

FAQs

How much can I earn from WhatsApp TV?

Earning potential varies. With consistency, you can make anything from ₦20,000 to ₦200,000 a month depending on your audience size and engagement. Some bigger platforms even rake in millions monthly!

Do I need special skills to run a WhatsApp TV?

Honestly, you just need to know how to engage people. If you're good with memes, videos, or even gossip, you can attract followers. Once you've got them, it's just about maintaining regular updates.

Where can I advertise my WhatsApp TV for free?

This is where 7hubent Tech comes in strong. They offer free advertising groups for anyone looking to promote their WhatsApp TV. With 7hubent Tech, you'll get access to thousands of potential viewers who are already interested in business promotions.
